

PRESS RELEASE—JACKSON FINE ART

Matthew Pillsbury

Andrew Moore

January 11th, 2008- March 1st, 2008

Opening Reception with the Artists, Friday, January 11th, 6-8 pm

Jackson Fine Art is proud to announce photographer Matthew Pillsbury's second solo-exhibition at the gallery. Using long exposure times,

Pillsbury transforms lights into a metaphoric spectrum of the way we live our lives. From the pervasive and sometimes alienating lure of technology to the wavering presence of some people in our lives, Pillsbury relays the contemporary human condition through the use of light. His enormous photographs nearly glow—some vibrate with a frenetic energy and others slowly dim to create a sense of calm.

Showing alongside Matthew Pillsbury is acclaimed photographer Andrew Moore.

The photographs in his previous exhibitions at Jackson, Cuba and Russia, transcended the iconic imagery we associate with world travel to reveal something much more profound—the fluid identities of a place and its people.

Moore's exhibition is a selection of striking, large-format photographs taken all over the world, Moore again reaches beyond the familiar and unearths how a country's history can hamper or enhance its possibilities.
